

WSR's new Learning Technologist, Mark Wilson, has set up a Wikipedia course so we can all learn to edit Wikipedia pages. Our goal is to create and maintain a WISR Wikipedia page. The course is free, starts Jan. 15th and there will be a meeting that day from 6-8 pm at WISR, 2930 Shattuck Ave. Suite 300, to learn more about the course. Anyone can login at any time and complete any or all of the 12 weekly modules before May 1st.

The link takes you to this page:

Hello!

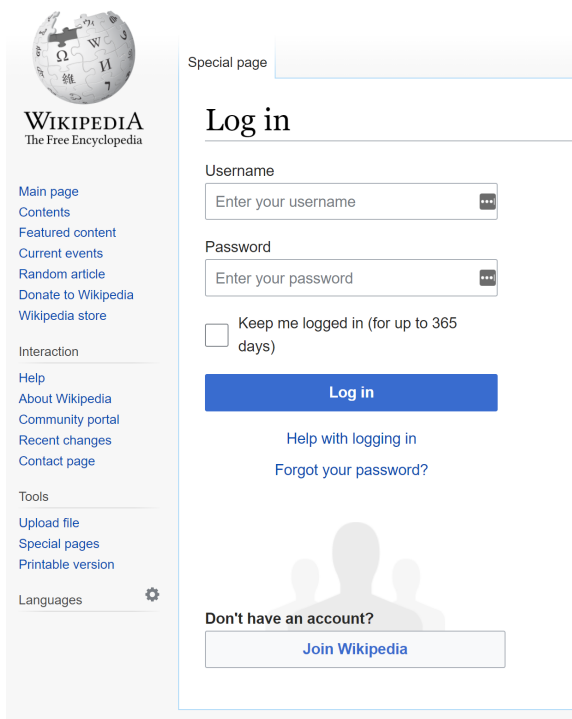

You've been invited to join WISR Collaboratory. To join the course, you need to log in with a Wikipedia account.

If you don't have a Wikipedia account yet, sign up for one now. Your username can be as anonymous — or as personally identifying — as you wish. (Shared accounts are not allowed.)

You must either log in with your existing Wikipedia account (bluish button), or create a new account (white button) to join the course. Users can be anonymous.

Students can also join the course from the permanent course link, below.

There is a "Join Course" button that asks for a code. The code is the same as at the end of the first link, above: dnszfxi

Entering that code takes you to a separate Login page with the same process; log in with an existing Wikipedia account (blue button), or create a new account (white button).

A google search for WISR Collaboratory + Wiki Ed can also lead to the course.
